Manifesto

I've been involved in the British Youth Council and other youth voice groups in my local area for over two years now and I've seen firsthand the benefits young people can bring to their community. However, nearly all successes have been with those in positions of authority engaging with young people and taking action on what they've heard.

If I were to be elected, I would make youth engagement my main priority. I would push elected officials across the country to meet with Youth Councils and Youth Voice groups so we can once again get those in all elected positions to work for the interests of young people.

I also pledge to represent every under-18 through engaging with as many of you as possible throughout my time in the role.
