

This manifesto is A4 in size, and in portrait orientation.

At the top of the manifesto is a teal blue box featuring the words “Liv Dunn For Women’s Rep” in white font. To the right of this is a teal circle, with an image of Liv inside it. Liv is a Caucasian woman with long, straight, ginger hair and a fringe, with green metal glasses and a smile on her face.

Underneath the header and image are the words “A Positive Voice for Young Liberal Women” written in the same teal.

Below this is a rectangular blue box. In black, Liv provides a record of achievement. This reads: “Despite only being in the role for a couple of months, I have already achieved a lot as your Women’s Rep. Whilst at London Conference, I ensured sanitary products were available for all attendees and organised an informal lunch for underrepresented genders. At the recent Federal Party Conference I participated in several media interviews and began developing a key working relationship with Lib Dem Women.”

The words “Bringing Your Ideas to the Forefront” are bullet pointed underneath this in a light red font. In a similarly red rectangular box below this is the following paragraph in black text: “Inspired by the previous REDL Officer, I will create a survey for women in YL, so our organisation can better understand the barriers to participation that women face in attending events, engaging in activism, and running in elections. I will use this survey to identify people who would like to participate in a further group discussion to build on this initial work. This research will play a vital role in my work to develop a solid plan to increase engagement, that is based on your lived experiences.”

Next, there is a yellow bullet point that reads “Organising High-Quality Inclusive Events”. In the yellow rectangular box below this is black text that reads: “Work with the Events Officer and the Trans Representative to run a more organised and pre-planned meal for under-represented genders at the next YL conference. The previous unplanned event at London conference was a great success and I want to build on the positive feedback I received. This event, alongside any others that may come about, would play a vital role in building a strong community and making new women feel a welcome part of the Young Liberals.”

There is a final bullet point underneath this in a light blue font that reads “Making Sure Women are Supported to Stand”. As previously, there is a rectangular box beneath- this time it is light blue in colour. Black text within the box reads “I will work with the executive officers to ensure that we take the right approach to encouraging women to take up positions in YL and pursue opportunities within our party. Too often, talented women are asked to take the plunge and end up thrown in the deep end without the right support to succeed. I want to work productively with the YL Executive, and our partners in Lib Dem Women, to ensure that women in the Young Liberals receive tailored assistance if they want to stand for election.”
