

Corey Bonniface - Manifesto for YSL Comms Officer Position

My name is Corey Bonniface, I am 18 Years old and come from a small town in the far north of Scotland called Thurso. I study politics at the University of Stirling and plan to assist in building the newly created Liberal Society as secretary. I am an avid gym-goer and trail cyclist and I am running for Scottish Young Liberals Comms Officer.

I have experience in the political sphere, helping out Ed Davey and Jamie Stone's campaigns in John O' Groats where I assisted Ed in the beginning of his pre-election tour from John O' Groats to Land's End. As well as this, I have canvassed throughout my large home constituency of Caithness, Sutherland, and Easter Ross for the Liberal Democrats.

I'm well versed in my political knowledge, I am constantly keeping up with current political events and analysing them.

I am running for this role in the Young Scottish Liberals because I am from an underrepresented constituency, particularly from that of the SNP government. I would like to ensure that the concerns of not only my own, but other underrepresented constituencies are noticed within the Young Liberals.

I am also running because I believe in the core values of Liberalism; especially the belief that it should be in the hands of the free individual to choose their own lifestyles, as well as staunchly supporting equal opportunities for all which I believe goes hand-in-hand with letting the people choose their own paths in life.

If I am elected as the Comms officer of the YSL, I shall make the Scottish Young Liberals a more well known organisation through the use of social media campaigning.

I will also give the Scottish Young Liberals a more present role on the Scottish Liberal Democrat social media pages.
