

POLICY COMMITTEE PLAIN TEXT:

A cream/beige background. "Cormac Evans Policy Committee" written in large black text at the top. A circular photo of Cormac. An orange text box reads: "I have served on Policy Committee for 2 consecutive terms, and in that time I have developed a strong understanding of what is required to be a committee member who can not only achieve results for YL as an organisation but also, crucially, ensure that YL policy successes are reflective of the Memberships priorities."

Below that, "I will:" is written in large black text.

Three orange rounded boxes follow:

First box titled "Reflect YOUR priorities" contains: "As a Policy Committee Member, I have ensured that I put my personal policy priorities aside and represent - first and foremost - the views and concerns of the Membership. The role of the Policy Committee is not to arbitrate on policy based on ideological favourability but to ensure that members are supported in the policy drafting process. If re-elected, continuing this would be my number one priority."

Second box titled "Get YL Policy passed federally" contains: "On Committee, I have been successful in pushing to get YL Policy adopted at Federal Conference. If re-elected, I would use my experience and understanding of the Policy process to continue this trend and work to make sure that YL continues to be the policy passing force that it is capable of being."

Third box titled "Be an active member" contains: "If re-elected, I would continue to be an active and vocal participant on the Policy Committee. Not only turning up consistently, but also being a strong voice for the Membership and the overall organisational interests of Young Liberals. I would use my prior experience to support the Policy Officer, and wider committee, in fulfilling the constitutional mandate of the Committee - particularly in the creation of the Manifesto as required by the recent Business Motion."
